Summary

CER.TOSA will contribute to the development of a sustainable and equitable energy community in Torpignattara, Rome, by focusing on the needs and aspirations of local communities. It will conduct a participatory analysis of socio-economic vulnerabilities in the neighbourhood of Torpignattara, using open and citizen science approaches. By involving residents and community organisations in the research process, the project seeks to identify specific vulnerabilities faced by the community that may not be captured through traditional data sources. Results will generate insights to guide the emerging energy community's choice to redirect their future utilities of a future energy and inform their future policies.
