Collecting marine-themed murals and the emotions and stories they evoke among citizen scientists in Spain, the Netherlands, Germany and Latvia.

Summary

“From Sea to Street” is a citizen science initiative (CSI) aimed at addressing key challenges facing the ocean (marine ecosystem) today. The project answers the question of whether and how murals, a specific form of street art, can inspire people to take care of coastal and ecosystems and their sustainable use in line with the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). During the project, we, an interdisciplinary group of young scientists, are conducting a citizen science campaign in four European countries (Spain, Germany, the Netherlands and Latvia). The citizen scientists (CS) collect ocean-themed murals and share the associations and emotions they evoke in them. In addition to stakeholder groups with an interest in (street) art and/or coastal and marine ecosystems, young people are also part of our target groups.
