Help us cultivate a community-driven movement for the wild and beautiful future of orchids.

Summary

Building on the success of Wild Future for Orchids, made possible by the Impetus fund, the project not only sparked the relaunch of the Wild for Orchids campaign but also revitalised the VO GreenHouse. Since 2024, GreenHouse has resumed its role as the campaign's coordinator and leader, ensuring that its original vision and objectives remain central to its efforts.

The project aims to generate scientifically robust data on the abundance and distribution of Maltese orchids while also training and motivating volunteers to participate as citizen scientists. It seeks to build a committed cohort of both veteran and new volunteers, establish a core team dedicated to long-term monitoring, create an action group to develop a management strategy, and publish an initial research paper on the topic.
